NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS (CONT'D)

According to the ROC Company Act amended in January, 2012, realized capital surplus can be capitalized and transferred to share capital or payment of cash dividends after offsetting accumulated deficit. Realized capital surplus mentioned above includes the proceeds received in excess of the par value of common stock issued and donated assets. According to the Regulations Governing the Offering and Issuance of Securities by Securities Issuers, the amount of capital surplus to be used to increase capital, the total capital surplus transferred to share capital cannot exceed 10% of paid-in capital each year.

(P) Earnings distribution

If there is earnings in the year, according to the Company's Articles of Incorporation, 10% of its annual net income after deduction of income tax and prior years' cumulative losses, if any, is first set aside as legal reserve. Following special reserve being appropriated according to related rules and requirements by competent authorities, at least 0.01% of the remaining balance should be distributed as employee bonuses. The remaining balance along with cumulative retained earnings are distributable earnings, which may be distributed according to the Board of Directors' proposal to be resolved by the stockholders' meeting.

In compliance with the amended Company Act on January, 2012, 10% of the annual net income (less any accumulated deficit) is appropriated as legal reserve. The aforementioned appropriation for legal reserve is made until the reserve equals the Company's capital. When there is no deficit, the legal reserve could be transferred, after the resolution of shareholders' meeting, to capital or distributed as cash dividends. Only the amount of the legal reserves exceed over 25% of paid-in capital could be transferred or distributed.

According to the regulations ruled by Financial Supervisory Commission, Executive Yuan, when the Company resolves how to distribute the earnings from prior years, in addition to legal reserve, the Company, in compliance with the Securities and Exchange Law NO.41 first article, should set aside special reserve as much as "unrealized loss on financial products" under stockholders' equity.

At the initial adoption, special reserve is set aside from the earnings of the year, and the insufficient amounts are from the undistributed earnings of the prior year. Since the following years, as to the difference between the unrealized loss on financial products of the year and the prior one, the Company should set aside special reserve or reverse them as distributable earnings.

On January 11, 2011, the Financial Supervisory Commission issued ruling letter FSC Jin-Kuan-Cheng-Chuan No. 0990073857 under which it revoked the rules regarding provision for trading losses reserve and Reserve for loss on breaches of contract for securities firms contained in the "Regulations Governing Securities Firms". As of December 31, 2010, the amount of Reserve for loss on breaches of contract which securities firms and futures commission merchants had made provision for should be reclassified as special reserve. The special reserve can only be used to offset a deficit or when it reaches 50% of total paid-in capital, of which 50% can be capitalized.

b. Financial Derivatives Products

(1) Warrants

For information about the issued stock warrants, please refer to Note 4 (J)

A. Credit risk

The Company is not exposed to credit risk because the premium is collected in advance before the warrants are issued.

B. Market risk

Warrants are derivative financial products; their market risk arises from changes in price of the underlying securities. The market risk of warrants could be hedged by adjusting warrants issued and their corresponding hedging positions.

C. Liquidity risk, cash-flow risk, and the uncertainty of amount and period of future cash demand

Since hedge positions have been established for the underlying securities through existing shareholdings (upon issuance) and premiums received in advance, no significant future cash demand is expected. Furthermore, since the underlying securities held are governed by the competent authority-in-charge, the possibility of not being able to sell the underlying securities at a reasonable price is very slim. Therefore, liquidity risk is relatively low. Cash flow risk arises only from the cash demand to adjust the hedging securities positions according to changes in market pricing of the underlying securities. When market liquidity is high, cash flow risk is minimal.

D. Purpose of issuing warrants, and strategy of achieving the related purpose

The Company issued warrants for trading purposes, and the premiums received from issuance are recorded as liabilities, which are revalued at market price at the balance sheet date. Gain or loss resulting from revaluation or execution of the warrant is credited or charged to current income.

The Company also holds hedge positions of operating securities for trading purposes to hedge against risk resulting from investors' execution of stock warrants in exchange for the underlying securities. The Company's hedging strategy is to achieve hedging of the majority of market risk associated with such warrants.

E. Type, purpose and strategy for holding derivative financial products

The purpose of the Company's hedging strategy is to hedge most of the market risk.

- (1) Financial assets and liabilities with fair value equal to book value:

- (2) Financial assets and liabilities are recognized based on the quoted market price. However, if the market price is unavailable, then the fair value is determined based on certain valuation techniques. The estimates and assumptions of the valuation techniques adopted by the Company are identical to those of other market participants.
- (3) Available-for-sale financial asset – non-current:

For non-open market of unlisted securities, to estimate its fair value is impracticable.

A summary of significant accounting policies and the bases of measurement are as follows:

(A) Accounting Estimate

The Company’s financial statements were prepared in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles. The Company had to use the reasonable amount of estimation for allowance for bad debt, depreciation of fixed assets, pension, asset impairment, etc. Because the estimation was usually determined under the uncertain condition, and the actual results could differ from these estimates.

(B) Asset impairment

In accordance with Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 35 “Impairment of Assets,” the recoverable amount (individual assets or cash generating units other than goodwill) of an asset is estimated and compared with the carrying amount whenever there is an indication that the asset may be impaired. An impairment loss is recognized when the recoverable amount is less than the carrying amount (the higher of fair market value and value in use). For assets other than goodwill, reversal of impairment loss is recognized when the recoverable amount of the asset has increased from its prior period estimation, the carrying value after the reversal should not exceed the recoverable amount or the depreciated or amortized balance of the assets assuming no impairment loss was recognized in prior period.

The Company records transactions in New Taiwan dollars. Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are revalued at the spot rate on the balance sheet date. The resulting exchange gains or losses are recorded as non-operating income or loss. According to amended Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 14 “The Effects of Changes in Foreign Exchange Rates,” non-monetary assets or liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are measured at the historical exchange rate of the transaction date. Non-monetary assets or liabilities denominated in foreign currencies that are measured at fair value are translated into the functional currency using the spot rate at the balance sheet date.
